Research Interests

Human-Computer Interaction • Interaction Design • Gestural Input • Wearable Sensors
Augmented and Virtual Reality • Physical Computing • Ubiquitous Computing

Education

Carnegie Mellon University, Pittsburgh PA AUGUST 2026 - PRESENT
Ph.D. Student, Human-Computer Interaction
Advised by David Lindlbauer in Augmented Perception Lab

Carnegie Mellon University, Pittsburgh PA AUGUST 2016 - MAY 2020
Bachelor of Science in Computer Science
Minors in Film and Media Studies, Media Design
Awards: University Honors, Phi Beta Kappa Member, Senior Leadership Recognition Recipient, Andrew Carnegie Society Scholar, Palantir Women in Technology Scholarship

Research Experience

Research Engineer JULY 2021 - MARCH 2026
Software Engineer JULY 2020 - JULY 2021
Software Engineering Intern MAY 2019 - AUGUST 2019

Reality Labs Research, Meta, Redmond WA

- Investigated wearable input devices for a contextual AI-powered interface
- Designed and implemented interaction techniques with Unity (C#), Kotlin, and prototype devices
- Conducted user studies, analyzed results, and authored research papers in top HCI conferences

Research Assistant MAY 2018 - DECEMBER 2018

Carnegie Mellon University Human-Computer Interaction Institute, Pittsburgh PA

- One of eight students on a project that explored how virtual reality could augment people's homes
- Built and programmed four prototype virtual reality spaces in Unity for the HTC Vive
- Reviewed literature, developed research questions, conducted playtests/interviews, synthesized results as co-author of research paper

Teaching Experience

Head Teaching Assistant AUGUST 2019 - MAY 2020
Teaching Assistant AUGUST 2017 - MAY 2018

Carnegie Mellon University School of Computer Science, Pittsburgh PA

- One of about twenty TAs for the theoretical CS course "Great Ideas in Theoretical Computer Science" (150-250 students, depending on the semester)
- Taught two weekly classes of about fifteen students each, held office hours, graded assignments, and worked with students individually
- As co-head TA from 2019-2020, coordinated TA responsibilities and supported the professors
